ABSTRACT

Higher education enrollment data were collected by the U.S. Office of Education for the 27th consecutive year in fall 1972, the last 7 years as part of the Higher Education General Information Survey (HEGIS). A single questionnaire was used, and this publication constitutes the complete report on the survey. Data contained within this report are present in families of tables, presenting distributions by control and level of institution, state or other area, and individual institution. Appendixes include an alternative aggregation for branches, the survey background, and the survey report form. (Author/PG)

FOREWORD

Higher education enrollment data were collected by the U. S. Office of Education for the 27th consecutive year in fall 1972, the last 7 years as part of the Higher Education General Information Survey. A single questionnaire was used (identical with the one used for fall 1971), and this publication constitutes the complete report on the survey. Data contained within this report are presented in families of tables, presenting distributions by control and level of institution, State or other area, and individual institution.

Many staff members in the National Center for Education Statistics and in the Office of Education contributed significantly to the production of this report, and all the contributions cannot be cited individually. Nevertheless, special recognition is due to Mrs. Angelyn T. McLilly and Mrs. Rita D. Arroyo for their substantial roles in reviewing and editing survey responses for accuracy and completeness

The continuing cooperation of the registrars and other college and university officials who supplied the basic data is deeply appreciated.

INTRODUCTION

Enrollment at institutions of higher education increased by only 3.0 percent in fall 1972, slowing down from the 4.3-percent gain in 1971 and the 7.2-percent gain in 1970. Continuing the gradual trend of more than a decade, public institutions, with an enrollment increase of 3.9 percent over fall 1971, enlarged their share of total enrollment to 76.6 percent, up from 76.0 percent the previous year. Meanwhile, private institutions barely held their own, with an increase of 0.2 percent in total enrollment over 1972. (See table T-1.)

Enrollment by Control and Level of Institution 1/

Enrollment at public universities increased by 0.6 percent, while declining by 0.2 percent at private universities, producing a combined increase of 0.4 percent for universities for fall 1972--a modest gain over the 0.1-percent increase for fall 1971. Other 4-year institutions experienced an enrollment increase of 2.3 percent from 1971 to 1972, resulting from a 3.2-percent gain in public 4-year institutions and a 1.0-percent gain in private institutions. Despite a 5.9-percent loss in enrollment in the small group of private 2-year colleges, overall enrollment in all 2-year institutions increased by 7.2 percent--boosted by the 7.9-percent increase in public 2-year institutions, which have now grown to be the largest enrollment group. (See table T-1.)

Sex and Attendance Status

From 1971 to 1972, the enrollment of women students in institutions of higher education increased 6.3 percent, while male enrollment increased by only 0.6 percent. (See table T-2.) The proportion of total enrollment accounted for by women, which has been gradually but steadily increasing for more than a decade, reached 43.3 percent in 1972. The proportion of women was higher in public institutions (43.9 percent) than in private institutions (41.1 percent). On the other hand, by control and level of institution, the proportion of women was lowest in private universities (35.8 percent) and highest in private 2-year institutions (51.0 percent). The year 1972 was the first in which women were a majority in any of the six control/level categories.

In 1972, the number of full-time students in all institutions declined very slightly, by 0.012 percent; in contrast, the enrollment of part-time students had increased (somewhat irregularly) from 1955--the earliest year for which complete data on attendance status are available, when it was 30.6 percent--to 1972, when it was 34.1 percent. Of this increase, 2.0 percentage points occurred from 1971 to 1972 alone. Private institutions had a greater proportion (74.8 percent) of full-time students than did public institutions (63.2 percent) in fall 1972. The proportion of full-time students in public institutions decreased by 2.5 percentage points from 1971 to 1972, compared with a decrease of 0.2 percentage points for private institutions.

By level of institution, public universities have a higher ratio of full-time students (74.5 percent) than do private universities (70.8 percent). In the case of other 4-year institutions, however, this relationship is reversed: in public institutions, full-time students constitute 70.0 percent of all students and in private institutions, 76.5 percent. Among all institutional control/level categories, the greatest range in the proportions of full-time attendance occurs within the 2-year group of institutions--greatest in private 2-year institutions (79.2 percent) and smallest in public 2-year institutions (46.9 percent). (See table T-3.) As with women students in private 2-year institutions, 1972 was the first year in which part-time students constituted more than half the total in any institutional control/level category. Finally, when students are further broken down into sex/attendance-status categories, women outnumber men in the following institutional control/level categories: part-time in public other 4-year institutions (53.1 percent), and full-time in private 2-year institutions (52.5 percent). (See table T-7.)

In fall 1971, full-time women students increased at a greater rate, relatively speaking, than did any other sex/attendance-status category (other categories frequently experienced decreases), in all institutional control/level categories but one--private 2-year institutions, where part-time women students showed the greatest rate of increase. In fall 1972, part-time women students showed the greatest relative increases in all control/level categories but one--private universities, where full-time women students showed a greater rate of increase. (See table T-7.)

Full-Time-Equivalent Enrollment

The increasing proportions of part-time students have reached the point where an apparent growth in total enrollment, measured in simple headcount, may mask an actual decline in institutional activity when part-time students are reduced to full-time equivalents. Table T-4 presents comparative headcount and full-time-equivalent enrollment data for 1971 and 1972. From 1971 to 1972, the enrollment of full-time students decreased by a fraction of a percent (0.012), while part-time students increased by 9.5 percent, with a net increase in total headcount enrollment of 3.0 percent and in full-time-equivalent enrollment of 1.3 percent.

With full-time men students decreasing by 1.9 percent and part-time increasing by 6.6 percent in fall 1972, the net result on the full-time-equivalent enrollment of men students was a decrease of 0.9 percent. In the case of women students, an increase of 13.0 percent in part-time students, combined with an increase of 3.9 percent in full-time students, had a net result of a 5.3-percent increase in the full-time-equivalent enrollment of women students in 1972.

Overall headcount enrollments in public institutions increased by 3.9 percent from 1971 to 1972, while private institutions barely held their own with an increase of only 0.2 percent. Full-time enrollment of women increased at a greater rate and full-time enrollment of men decreased at a lesser rate in private than in public institutions, while the opposite was true of part-time enrollments. The result is that full-time-equivalent enrollment at private institutions increased by the same percentage as overall headcount enrollment--0.2 percent--and full-time-equivalent enrollment at public institutions increased by only 1.7 percent in 1972 compared with the headcount increase of 3.9 percent.

Type of Program and Level of Enrollment

The enrollment of students in programs consisting of work primarily creditable toward beachelor's or higher degrees increased by 1.9 percent from 1971 to 1972, following a 2.5-percent increase from 1970 to 1971. (See table T-5.) The increase in public institutions in 1972 was 2.4 percent, while private institutions showed a slight gain of 0.3 percent; the latter, moreover, followed a decrease of 0.6 percent from 1970 to 1971, with a cumulative loss in the 2-year period from 1970 to 1972 of 0.3 percent. Enrollment of bachelor's or higher degree-credit students at universities increased by 0.4 percent in 1972, compared with a gain of 0.2 percent in 1971. The 1972 increases in degree-credit enrollment at other 4-year institutions (2.2 percent) and 2-year institutions (3.8 percent) were both somewhat more modest than the 1971 increases--3.0 percent and 5.9 percent, respectively.

The enrollment of male students in programs leading to bachelor's or higher degrees decreased by 0.3 percent, while women students in such programs increased by 4.9 percent. Enrollment of undergraduate students in bachelor's degree-credit programs remained virtually unchanged in 1972, increasing only by 0.2 percent over 1971. The number of men actually declined--by 1.9 percent; at the same time, women were increasing by 2.9 percent. The enrollment of students in first-professional degree programs increased overall by 7.6 percent in 1972: male students, by 5.7 percent; women, in sharp contrast, by 25.5 percent. In fall 1971, the number of women enrolled in first-professional degree programs had increased by 25.9 percent, with a cumulative 2-year increase of 58.1 percent from 1970 to 1972. Notwithstanding the impressive increases for women in first-professional programs, it should be noted that their numbers remained small, constituting only 11.4 percent of all first-professional students. Unclassified students (including persons enrolled for courses at either the undergraduate or graduate level but not in a degree program, students with degrees taking courses at that same degree level, transfer students whose status has not yet been determined, and others who could not be classified) increased by 17.1 percent in the fall of 1972--the number of males increasing by 14.3 percent and females by 20.1 percent.

Non-bachelor's-degree-credit students increased by 14.2 percent in 1972, following a 26.1-percent increase in 1971. Non-bachelor's-degree-credit students are those in undergraduate vocational and technical curricula that are designed to be terminal and not chiefly creditable toward a bachelor's degree. Enrollment in these programs in public institutions increased by 15.2 percent in 1972, but in private institutions enrollment in these programs decreased by 4.8 percent. Inasmuch as private institutions enrolled only 4.2 percent of the students in non-bachelor's-degree-credit programs in fall 1972, their decline had little effect on the overall decrease in enrollment in these programs. The increase in enrollment in these programs at universities was 5.1 percent in 1972 and, at other 4-year institutions, 9.3 percent; at 2-year institutions, which enrolled 91.4 percent of all non-bachelor's-degree-credit students, it was 14.9 percent.

Although the number of male students enrolled in non-bachelor's-degree-credit programs has increased rapidly in recent years (by 20.4 percent in 1971 and 10.0 percent in 1972), enrollment of female students has increased much more rapidly (35.1 percent in 1971 and 20.3 percent in 1972). The representation of women in these programs has increased from 38.5 percent of the total in 1970 to 43.4 percent in 1972. The greatest difference in rates of growth in the non-bachelor's-degree-credit curricula is found when classifying students by attendance status: full-time students increased by a modest 6.5 percent in fall 1972; but part-time students, who accounted for 55.1 percent of the total, increased by 21.4 percent.

First-Time Students

The number of students entering college for the first time in fall 1972 increased by only 1.7 percent over the comparable figure for fall 1971. (See table T-6.) The rate of increase for public institutions was 2.4 percent, while private institutions incurred a loss of 1.2 percent, their second consecutive year of decline. By level of institution, only the 2-year category showed a gain--6.6 percent. Both universities and other 4-year institutions experienced decreases--3.3 and 2.2 percent, respectively--the third consecutive year of decline for universities and the second for other 4-year institutions.

In 1972, the enrollment of male first-time students decreased by 1.0 percent, following a modest gain of 1.6 percent in 1971 and 2.9 percent in 1970. Following a 4.0-percent increase in fall 1971, female students increased by 5.0 percent in 1972. Women constituted 46.3 percent of first-time students in fall 1972, although they were only 43.3 percent of total enrollment. Full-time students comprised nearly three-fourths (73.2 percent) of all first-time students in 1972, but actually decreased, from fall 1971 to fall 1972, by 1.9 percent. Part-time first-time students, who were increasing by 7.7 percent in 1971 and 12.9 percent in 1972, comprised 23.0 percent of total first-time students in 1970 and reached 26.8 percent in 1972. In terms of type of program, first-time bachelor's-degree-credit students decreased by 1.3 percent, following a decrease of 0.8 percent in 1971. By comparison, first-time non-bachelor's-degree-credit students increased in 1972 by 16.6 percent, after increases of 29.7 percent in 1970 and 24.7 percent in 1971. In 1972, non-bachelor's-degree-credit students, who comprised only 10.3 percent of total enrollment, accounted for 19.0 percent of all first-time students.

Table T-7 presents a consolidated summary of total fall enrollment data for 1970, 1971, and 1972, with percent changes, by control and level of institution and by sex and attendance status of student.

1/ Readers should be reminded that although enrollment does change every year, so does the number of institutions accounting for this total enrollment. Accordingly, the numbers of institutions in each year for which enrollment data are shown in the table are as follows: 1972 - 2,680; 1971 - 2,617; 1970 - 2,565; 1969 - 2,536; 1968 - 2,495; 1967 - 2,382; 1966 - 2,337; 1965 - 2,238; 1964 - 2,183; 1963 - 2,140.

2/ A first-time student is defined as a new freshman (in the fall term) who has never previously been enrolled in an institution of higher education. First-time students are included in the appropriate "total, all students" counts. Data for first-time students for years prior to 1966 are not comparable since they include only first-time students in programs chiefly creditable toward a bachelor's degree.
